

MY NAME IS SHYBO

By Teresa Marotta

About the Book

Shybo is an eight-year-old little boy from a planet called Fuzzy Buzzy whose father is a scientist studying plant life on earth. Shybo is allowed to go down to earth for his awakening day and meet and learn from the animals and insects that he meets while there. He also discovers to his constant delight that his antenna will now give him magical powers. His adventures on earth teach him kindness and awareness of others. At the end of this book is an address where children can write to Shybo to say hi and he will write back! This is to help teach children how to write letters via snail mail and to anticipate the mailman delivering one back!

“Shybo is a good role model for the young readers, as he is obedient to his parents, and kind and helpful to his new friends. The story is not only creative, but educational as it describes the different animals, their characteristics, and habitats. Young readers would be interested in hearing more about Shybo's adventures.” —Darla Franklin, Elementary School Teacher

“Children will enjoy learning more about different animals, including their habitats, in this unique story about an interesting little alien's adventures. It could be used as a springboard for the children to imagine their own adventures on a strange new planet of their own creation.” —Ruth Pooler, Retired Elementary School Teacher
